

INTRODUCTION

This dossier serves as a summary of my contributions to research, teaching, and service to the Center for the Study of Higher and Postsecondary Education (CSHPE), the Marsal Family School of Education, and the University of Michigan during my first three years as Assistant Professor of Higher Education. My research statement aims to synthesize my research activities and productivity as an academic and publicly-engaged scholar, both prior to and since joining the CSPHE faculty. More specifically, this statement details my contributions to the study of higher and postsecondary education across three interrelated domains: interrelated and interdisciplinary areas of postsecondary study: race and racism in higher education; activism and social movements in college; and critical university studies. My teaching statement describes my overall philosophy and approach to teaching as a collaborative learning process as well the courses I teach and the students I support directly and indirectly as an academic and research advisor. The final statement provides an enumeration of the breadth and depth of my service to the field of higher education and its professional associations, the School of Education, and the University.
